

edcamp Bemidji

March 1, 2014 - 8:00 - 4:00 PM

Bemidji State University | Bensen Hall

What is edcamp?

Simply, it is a free conference for teachers, administrators, pre-service teachers - actually anyone who is interested in making education better. What makes edcamp unique is that there are no paid speakers or presenters, in fact you are considered the expert. Attendees can choose to present, learn, or both! The schedule will be built during the morning opening session.

How do I register?

Registration takes place through Eventbrite and can be accessed by going to EdCamp Bemidji's website. Once on the site click the 'register now' button.

What should I bring?

1. A laptop or tablet, is helpful. There will be Wi-Fi available.
2. A mind, that is open and ready to learn.
3. A friend or two, or three.

What will be covered?

Since the schedule is built the day of we really do not know. Here is what we do know, we will provide a blank schedule and you will complete it with a range of topics ranging from best practices to technology integration.

What about Breakfast/Lunch?

We are currently working to secure sponsors for breakfast and lunch. We will keep attendees updated as we learn more.

Do I have to be from Bemidji to attend?

No! This event is open to anyone and everyone. If you are traveling a distance, check out our accommodations page on our website.

What if I have other questions?

Feel free to contact the EdCamp Bemidji organizing team at edcampbemidji@gmail.com, someone on the organizing team will be happy to help.
